January 1, 2011 (the week of)

Up to 5k black birds fall to the sky on New Year's Eve in Arkansas. The blue birds didn't like the black birds crashing their rockin' party. Isn't that a verse in the Green Acres song?

Mayor Bloomberg is investigating whether sanitation workers delayed snow cleanup in protest over budget cuts. I LOVE NY. The workers were going to throw some of that green puddle sludge on top of the snow heaps, but the puddles were frozen.

Gas at the pump is heading to $5 in 2011. psssst...hear that? It's the leak in the consumer spending bubble. Oh man! We were heading to Applebees tonight...now it's frozen pizza in front of the TV.

Tuesday's Mega Millions $355 jackpot: four numbers matched the famous Lotto numbers on the show Lost. Hurley's numbers were 4, 8, 15, 16, 23 & 42. Creepy is what creepy does.

60 minutes poll: 61% of those polled want higher taxes on the rich to help us balance the budget. Only 61%? I guess it's all in how we define "rich". Beware the pitchfork, my friend.

James Franco: After playing three gay characters in movies, he says to the media, "maybe I am gay..." Maybe we should stop asking people about what isn't our business

January 8, 2011 (the week of)

Gwyneth Paltrow will be on two episodes of Glee as substitute teacher Holly Holliday. With a character name like that, can they put a pole in the classroom so she can dance around it?

Formerly homeless Ted Williams of Cleveland reunites with his mother in Brooklyn after 10 years. Who hasn't seen this guy on YouTube? He now has a morning show radio job. Only in America.

California Blue Cross Blue Shield is raising its health premiums by as much as 59% for 2011. Yeah, I'm pretty sure that's what Obamacare had in mind....

Congresswoman Giffords was a target at a shooting in AZ that killed a federal judge and a child. What is going on in this country? Too many nuts!

Snow is present in 49 of the 50 states. Guess which one is snow free?.....
.....FLORIDA. (some mountain in Hawaii has snow year round)

Verizon's iPhone likely won't be able to talk and surf the web at the same time.
LAME....This is 2011 is it not?

Crazy weather around the world is being blamed on La Nina and North American Oscillation.....????? Maybe we throw in the delay in Lady Gaga's next album as a reason also.

January 15, 2011 (the week of)

AP's most recent Obama poll revealed a 50% approval rating thanks to the improving economy. 71% want him to reduce the national debt, though. It's the debt, stupid.

US debt reaches $14 trillion. That's a lot of monopoly money. Yikes.

Alicia Silverstone is pregnant. Wasn't it just yesterday she was in that Aerosmith video running around in a nightie?

No Strings Attached wins the Box Office this weekend, pulling in $20.3 million. To all the guys that got dragged along to this one...I am sorry.

GOP-led House to repeal Obama's health care bill. Though it won't pass in the Senate, this is going to be a huge issue for 2012 elections. That and Jobs, China, our National Debt.....

Netflix has announced: "We're removing the 'Add to DVD Queue' option from streaming devices." Customers are way pissed over this, but what can you do? Go to Blockbuster?

Nicole Kidman and Keith Urban are having a child through surrogate. That kid is going to have a real good looking, great sounding set of vocal pipes.

Steve Jobs is taking his second medical leave in two years. They should freeze this guy like Han Solo and unfreeze him when the iPhone sales mature, which is inevitable.

January 22, 2011 (the week of)

Adding Steven Tyler and Jennifer Lopez to Idol was pretty smart. Finally, we have some singers on the panel.

Jimmy Buffet falls off the stage during a concert. I hope it wasn't during his singing of Margaritaville....that song rocks.

Obama takes 47 minutes to get to the deficit in the State of the Union. What about the grand new vision for America? We cannot do anything teetering on bankruptcy.

Car parked in New York gets frozen in place by over two inches of ice as a broken pipe sprays water onto it through the night. And you thought you had a bad day.....

Three weeks after the payroll tax cut took effect, few people notice the extra cash. No duh...most of us have yet to emerge from the rock we've been hiding under during this recession.

January 29, 2011 (the week of)

The Rite takes in the #1 movie slot this past weekend with an uninspiring $15 million. Not enough spinning, vomiting heads in this one, I guess.

FCC approves Comcast-NBC merger. Obama must really love America's Got Talent!

Illinois supreme court puts Rahm Emanuel back onto mayoral ballot for Chicago. Why not? Obama's on a roll. Turns out you don't even have to meet the Chicago residency requirements to be mayor. Huh.

Anderson Cooper is attacked by a rioting mob in Egypt. Maybe they were after that awesome hair of his.

Two And A Half Men is on hiatus after Charlie Sheen gets private rehab. Dang. I guess making $1 million per episode allows one to afford private rehab

February 5, 2011 (the week of)

Obama's health bill is headed for a Supreme Court battle after Florida judge throws out the health care law. Probably, the judge didn't like having to pay for the 40 million without health insurance in this country.

The Roommate is the top movie of the weekend with $15.3 million. Chick thrillers.... I wonder if that movie would do so well with guys as the center roles?

Worst city for Men's health, as ranked by the magazine Men's Health: St. Louis, MO..... Best City: Madison, WI

Papa Johns is giving away $25 gift cards for registered Internet customers if the Super Bowl goes into overtime. Not bad odds that this game goes into overtime, right?

Tom Hanks is a grandfather. Man, I was just watching Bachelor Party the other day....he plays such a young punk in that movie it's scary.

Prince kicks Kim Kardashian off the stage. Apparently because she wouldn't dance. That's okay...she's got Olympian step dad Bruce Jenner's shoulder to cry on.

Mubarak is as stubborn a mule as they come. Get the heck out of the way, dude....before you're head gets blown off.

Gabrielle Giffords spoke her first words since being shot today. God bless that courageous woman.

February 12, 2011 (the week of)

Just Go With It, Jennifer Aniston & Adam Sandler movie barely beats out Justin Bieber's movie... That's gotta make all parties proud!

Ron Paul tops conservative Straw Poll. I'm sure all the people at the local hootenanny were thrilled to be called a Straw Poll.

House Republicans have a $61 billion cost cutting plan. On the chopping block: Americorps and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. That's just plain wrong, man!

Lady Gaga arrives at the Grammy's in a giant egg. Willy Wonka would love this.

Michael Vick cancels interview on Oprah. Nothing snarky to say here, just the facts

Ken Jennings loses on Jeopardy to an IBM computer. Shocker. But, can the computer get up and dance from all the media attention Ken's getting? I think NOT!

February 19, 2011 (the week of)

Cam Newton lands the largest ever rookie endorsement deal. That will go over well in camp.... Will there be a camp? A season?

Liam Neeson's movie Unknown wins the weekend with $21.9 million. Who knew he was such a kick ass guy?

Tea Partiers descend upon Wisconsin protest against the bill that will cut down union collective bargaining. With 18% real unemployment in the US, it's hard to have a heart for union trouble Female wrestler from Iowa earns victory by default. This story is everywhere because it's got gender issues and religion. Wait for the movie.

Donald Trump is thinking about running for President. Really? Maybe he wants to put on an addition to the White House.

Chicago mayor candidates wrap up campaigns. Like Rahm Emanuel really is going to lose this one.

Kelsey Grammer getting married to Kate Walsh at the Plaza Hotel in NY City for $400 a head. Does that price include an open bar?

CBS cancels Two And A Half Men for the Season due to Charlie Sheen's continued antics. That took serious balls to do that. Michael Jordan cannot be pleased about this.

February 26, 2011 (the week of)

Could James Franco have acted any more disinterested in co-hosting the Oscars last evening?

American Idol: So many tears as they cut to the top 24. Wasn't Cryin' one of Aeromith's biggest songs? Plus, Simon didn't allow any tears from the judges, so now that he's gone....

Libyans fleeing for Egypt. That has got to say just how bad it is there in Libya.

Gnomeo & Juliet wins the weekend box office race with $14 million. Pretty weak....pretty weak. Hard to believe we are almost into March.

Gas prices are quickly heading to $5.50 a gallon at the pump. We could all be driving the Prius at this rate.

People in Atlanta have been getting $1000 plus water bills for as far back as 2007 due to what they think are faulty meters and billing system errors. Crazy. People are piping mad over this. Wouldn't you be? But, honestly, this is a four year old problem.

Egyptian attorney general forbids Mubarak from leaving the country. They need to take his ill-gotten billions and return them to the people of Egypt.

March 5, 2011 (the week of)

The lizard Rango took the box office victory this weekend with a nice $38 million.
Stupid lizard...not so stupid after all

Wisconsin governor making concessions...he ain't no Governor Christie is he? huh?
huh?

Phil Collins is calling it quits in music to focus on his health. We're gonna miss you buddy. You made good music over the years no matter what the critics have said.

Lady Gaga threatens to sue over Baby Gaga human breast milk ice cream treat.
'mmmm tasty treat! Got to get me some of that.

Obama basically called the millionaires of the NFL, owners and players stupid for even wanting the President to get involved with their negotiations when clearly he has more important things to do. Amen to that! Of course, if we get into early July with no agreement, I'll bet hard Vegas money he steps in.

US takes over three Tylenol plants....didn't we just do this 30 years ago?

March 12, 2011 (the week of)

Battle: LA wins the box office with a large $36 million tally. I laughed so hard when I saw the preview. So the aliens are ONLY attacking LA? That's a TV movie, folks.

My heart goes out to the people of Japan. Doesn't the earth open up at 8.9?

Rob Lowe gets the nod from Charlie Sheen to be his replacement on Two And A Half Men. Just doesn't seem kosher. He did play a solid womanizer in St. Elmo's Fire, though. TWENTY SIX YEARS AGO!!

Is Donald Trump really serious about running for the GOP nomination? Wow. That's all I gotta say...Obama must be thrilled Obama takes flak over his Final Four picks. There's an exposed nuclear rod in Japan and we care that our President gets THIS right?

US nukes: half are over 30 years old. An 8.9 hits them, we are TOAST. Literally.

China completed the construction of its first underwater railway tunnel that enables trains to run at the fastest speed in the world under the water. Maybe AMTRAK should offer its services to operate the rail line.

March 19, 2011 (the week of)

Gadhafi compound building hit in air strike. We need more of THAT!

13 year old Rebecca Black has had 16 million hits on You Tube for her Friday song, mostly from people looking to tear her down. A 13 year old girl? That's just mean, folks. Really mean.

The FDA is being urged to ban Menthol cigarettes. Over 20% of US adults still smoke. Yuck!

Marijuana shops get green light in Phoenix. Six shops apparently. Students from Ridgemont High in California (Fast Times At Ridgemont High movie) were waiting outside the door of one of the stores when it opened.

Idol tries to kick off Casey but the judges save him. If the American Public votes him off next week, they will look soooooo fooolish.

Elizabeth Taylor dies at age 79. Boy, I thought she was a whole lot older than 79 these days. Best wishes.

March 26, 2011 (the week of)

George Lopez calls Dancing with the Stars celebrity Kirstie Alley a pig. Uh, that's not playing nice in the Hollywood sandbox.

Census data recently showed that nearly 20% of Florida homes sit empty right now. I didn't know it was that bad down there. Alligators will outnumber homeowners at this rate.

Charlie Sheen tix are to be had at 1/2 face value apparently in key markets. Reports of 'sold out' are way mis-stated. Maybe he can put this situation in his act.

$319 million Mega Millions prize in NY was won over the weekend but the winner has yet to step forward. He/She is still passed out on the living room floor.

Saw Lincoln Lawyer this weekend. I liked it. Thumbs up. Keeps you guessing.

April 2, 2011 (the week of)

The movie 'Hop' takes first place over the weekend, pulling in $38.1 million. My kids saw it and loved it. Russell Brand has never had it so good. Okay, he is married to Katie Perry....

House GOP is attacking Medicare and Medicaid, coming up with a plan like vouchers for private insurance by 2020. All those under 55 today are so screwed...

A Southwest Airlines flight landed safely at a military base in Yuma, Arizona, with what passengers described as a 3-foot hole in the fuselage of the Boeing 737. That's it, I'm riding Airbus only from now on!!

Billy Joel is pulling the plug on his memoir. I don't know how many people breathed sighs of relief on this decision, but it had to be plenty. He reportedly received a $3 million retainer which is unheard of today in the publishing world

NFL lawsuit judge says she'll be back with a decision in a few weeks. A few weeks? Dang....No way the NFL season starts on time

April 9, 2011 (the week of)

The Japanese earthquake is causing some major auto part supply issues for all global auto makers, including Ford and GM but especially Toyota and Honda.

Barry Bonds gets convicted for obstruction to justice not for perjury. Stupid people.

In a lousy year for ratings, NBC finds its 'voice'. That's the beauty of TV shows like Idol or the Voice. They don't require a creative script, so they can come out of nowhere to be a hit like The Voice clearly has done for NBC. The network should produce a TV series about reality shows like this.

GOP calls Obama's tax the rich plan class warfare. So, making Senior Citizens pay more for Medicare (the majority of whom are NOT in the top 1% of wealth....that's not class warfare?

Judge to Winklevoss twins (the rich kids from Harvard who are suing, again, for a bigger piece of Facebook) : "Move on"..... Nicely put.

Hangover 2 trailer is pulled from theatres in a big mystery. Bad language I think. This movie takes place in Bangkok. I guess what happens in Vegas doesn't stay in Vegas.

Charlie Sheen gets better reviews in Chicago after completely bombing in Detroit. If only every rookie comedian out there could do that after only his second show.

Simon Cowell: Idol has its energy back. Much improved from last year's show. How nice of him. You'd think he owned the show or something. Wait....he DOES!

April 16, 2011 (the week of)

Budget crisis is over (har har). At least all those well paid government workers get to go back to work on Monday.

Match.com agrees to screen for sex offenders after lawsuit. Are you freakin' kidding me? It took a lawsuit to make them start doing this? Holy cow.

Nicolas Cage arrested in New Orleans. I bet when he made Con Air, he didn't think it would get like this.

The iPhone secretly tracks your location. It also creepily watches you sleep at night.

Obama: Debt reduction is needed to save the American dream. 75% of Americans are living that dream right now. It's called a nightmare.

Egypt's chief archaeologist now multitasking to avoid allegations of powermongering and fraud. Hey you, hand over that mummy!

April 23, 2011 (the week of)

Donald Trump...what do you say now that Obama has produced a birth certificate? Blame it on a bad hair day and move on. But, seriously....why on earth hadn't Obama done this before?

Playstation update: If you are a Playstation network member (70 million of you are), you have had a lot of your personal data that you gave them stolen. Dang. So, for example, if you see a $900 charge for Dingo Bob's fish bonanza on next month's credit card statement, call the card company right away.

Levi Johnston to release a tell-all book about Sarah Palin's family. I'm fairly certain the Obama campaign of 2008 already did that. Kinda late to the party, Levi.

Paula Abdul is close to signing on to the X factor, the British form of Idol. I guess Simon misses yelling at her.

Mattel loses its decade long court battle over the Bratz doll brand. Barbie is crying on Ken's shoulder tonight, BABY! But, it's not all bad....Barbie sales were up double digits for the first time in 15 years this past quarter.

Jim Carrey signs on for 'The Office' finale. How grand. Maybe he can resurrect Fire Marshall Bill to make it real interesting.

Steve Carell is leaving The Office for good this Thursday. End of an era...very sad

April 30, 2011 (the week of)

The IRS says that 45% of US households won't owe any taxes for 2010. I can't imagine how much the top 1% of wealth in the US pays people to make sure THEY pay as little as possible.

Royal wedding spoof goes viral. <http://royalwedding.yahoo.com/blogs/the-royals-get-spoofed-4952>

Check out Mark Zuckerberg's new house in Palo Alto for a cool $7 million. I would have expected a lot more for $7 million, frankly. <http://realestate.yahoo.com/promo/facebooks-mark-zuckerberg-buys-7-million-home.html>

Gabby Giffords, the Congresswoman shot in the head in Arizona a few months ago is up and walking. Amazing. She clearly wasn't meant to leave this earth quite yet.

Fast Five movie rakes in over $83 million this weekend, breaking the April box office record. Awesome. People like to have their pulse rate racing for two hours, I guess.

Mark Wahlberg and Justin Bieber are doing an urban basketball movie together. Totally bizarre combo, right?

May 7, 2011 (the week of)

Three air traffic control workers have fallen asleep on the job in the past month.
WAKE UP, PLANES ARE IN THE AIR.

The movie Thor pulled in a nifty $26 million on Friday. Just how many super hero, comic book based movies are coming out this summer? Oh brother.....

Have you seen Bin Laden's $3 million compound? The place looks like a three story meth house, inside and outside. Disgusting.

My heart goes out to all the people of Alabama who are suffering from the worst tornado damage ever. My parents live in Virginia and they were under tornado watch all day on Wednesday.

Lindsay Lohan was sentenced to four months in jail for her latest mishap. Maybe they can film Mean Girls 2 while she's in there.

Pakistani PM says bin Laden's death was 'justice done' ...phew, that's a relief!

May 14, 2011 (the week of)

The movie Thor pulled in $35 million in its second weekend. This movie cost $150 million. They'd better hope this train keeps groovin'

Ashton Kutcher is the new dude on Two and a Half men. Jon Cryer is already looking over his shoulder for some Punked stunt.

Donald Trump's poll figures plummet.

http://news.yahoo.com/s/yblog_theticket/20110510/el_yblog_theticket/trumps-2012-polling-plummets

Dominique Strauss-Kahn, the former IMF chief, got bail after trying a second time in court. What's not to like about Riker's Island? What a pansy! Lock up a hotel maid and you don't like being locked up yourself?

Lady Gaga reaches 10 million Twitter followers. That's a whole lot of 'please go to my site and buy whatever the hell I'm selling' tweeters.

Arnold Schwarzenegger confesses to having a ten year old child out of wedlock. Hey, let's give Arnold a break...maybe this child will grow to lead a rebel force after the machines take over the world.

Oil prices plummeted 15% this past week, so give it a week or two before prices begin falling at the pump. Good news for those avoiding sky high airline prices this summer.

May 21, 2011 (the week of)

Why would be engineers major in English.

<http://www.cnn.com/2011/US/05/17/education.stem.graduation/index.html?hpt=Sbin> .

Because you can drink more beer and actually have a fun college experience?

Judgment day is coming! Harold Camping and his followers claim Judgment Day is Saturday. Are you on your knees yet?

Mississippi Gov. Haley Barbour's lake house in Yazoo County is flooded with water up to the second floor. <http://www.cnn.com/video/#/video/us/2011/05/18/miss.gov.lake.house.flooded.wlbt?hpt=T2>

Blackbeard's anchor discovered off the coast of North Carolina. Does Johnny Depp know about this? http://news.yahoo.com/s/ap/20110527/ap_on_re_us/us_blackbeard_s_ship

Cheryl Cole has been dropped from the X Factor. In the US, we kinda like to see recognizable faces on these kinds of shows. Cheryl Crow would be better.

After 25 years, Oprah says goodbye. The publishing world is dismayed because who will promote its books now? Her show was responsible for millions of book sales the past 10 years.

Lady Gaga's Born This Way album was offered on Amazon for $.99 yesterday in a clear attempt to steal market share from Apple's iTunes. Throw in a free dishwasher and they might start to make some headway.

One of Obama's armored cars got stuck in the Irish roadway for fifteen minutes. The underside got stuck on a bump. They made Obama get out and push.

Pirates of the Caribbean sequel "On Stranger Tides" found its smoothest sailing overseas, where it took in a record $236 million internationally and $90 million in the US. Take that Barbossa! (Captain Jack's nemesis)

May 28, 2011 (the week of)

Patrick Dempsey may be leaving Grey's Anatomy. Not if the ABC bank has anything to do with it.

Cell Phones may cause cancer, says the WHO organization. That's it! I'm bringing back the landline! They really don't know for sure, but to be safe, they thought it best to scare everybody.

NHL's Atlanta Thrashers are moving to Winnipeg. That just seems right, doesn't it?

Hangover 2's five day tally is $138 million. I hear the monkey is demanding $10 million for the third movie.

Palin and Romney top GOP contenders poll. Obama saw this around noontime and hasn't stopped laughing. His advisors have had to cancel a few meetings.

Pennsylvania woman sues Dunkin Donuts for sugar in her coffee. The headline doesn't do the story justice since the woman went into a diabetic coma. If I were that sensitive to sugar, I'd stay the heck away from retail food places.

June 4, 2011 (the week of)

Man strips naked on plane, forcing the pilot to turn the plane around. http://news.yahoo.com/s/afp/20110610/od_afp/spaingermanytransportaviationcrimeoffbeat He probably didn't like the pretzels.

Time to talk double dip recession? I'm sorry did the 24 million folks wrapped up in real unemployment get the memo that the first recession ended?

Steve Jobs bio already a best seller. Gee, I wonder if he has it up on iBooks.

Possible delay for Star Trek 2. I don't know...the Captain Kirk I knew (not really, he was WAY before my time) would have banged out that script in no time.

San Francisco gives a hearty tax break to Twitter to keep its corporate headquarters in the city. The mayor received 200 Twitter followers as a thank you from the company.

Li Na was the first ever Chinese tennis player to win a major (the French Open). The Chinese Ping Pong Federation is up in arms over this development.

June 11, 2011 (the week of)

Mitt Romney jokes to a group of unemployed Floridians, "I am also unemployed."
The millionaire clearly at retirement age was slammed in the media. Boo Hoo

Black holes abound in today's universe. No kidding! Just ask the congressional office of budgets and spending on that!

TV watching heightens the risk of dying young. So, get off the computer and do some exercises, Lard ASS.

Another volcanic ash cloud is causing flight cancellations in Australia and New Zealand. This was never a problem before last year. What gives? I'm getting my bible out!

Russell Crowe on circumcision: I am very sorry. He calls the practice barbaric...that's kind of hitting below the belt, right?

Fighter jets intercept a plane near Obama's retreat. With a 35% approval rating, he can't be too careful these days.

June 18, 2011 (the week of)

Hustler magazine founder, Larry Flynt, has made a job offer to embattled ex-congressman, Anthony Weiner. With a last name like that? He's a natural!

Hackers steal Sega customer data....all five customers, that is. I wasn't even aware Sega had a relevant product out anymore.

Green Lantern rakes in $52.8 million. With a lead character named Hal and chosen from outerspace aliens to represent their 'talents', you'd think they could do some market research on the name Hal. Just Saying....

Flight attendant gets job with fake ID. On a day when United's computer system goes down, why is this headline not the least surprising?

Vanilla Ice starts a real estate website. If you buy a house from him, he'll personally sing "Ice, Ice, Baby," to you and your family.

Megan Fox gets dumped from Transformers because of a Hitler comment? At least that's the headline. Hollywood is run by powerful people of the Jewish faith...She might try duct tape next time.

June 25, 2011 (the week of)

Thriller jacket sells at auction for $1.8 million. I can only imagine what they found in the pockets.

Ron Paul: "Is the gold at Fort Knox still there?" I bet the Joker or the Penguin took it.

Data: Saturn moon life could support life. Why don't we send a few members of Congress out there to check it out for six months?

Lindsay Lohan refuses to come out of her bedroom for an interview with Matt Lauer. I know, that sounds really awkward, right?

Sheen: "I did steroids for film role." Huh....steroids shrink the male testicles and penis. Maybe that's why he went over the deep end.

Your House Representative can now Skype you. They'll do a video but you have to promise to be fully clothed.

July 2nd, 2011 (the week of)

Gary Johnson, GOP 2012 candidate, wants to legalize marijuana. Maybe we should make his kind of stupidity illegal. The ultra right is going to nominate this joker?

Pia Toscano, who didn't even finish in the top five in American Idol, landed a record deal with Interscope Records and has a single out next week. You almost don't want to win the darn thing!

Casey Anthony found innocent...wow. Maybe OJ did it! Of course, his murderous glory days were pre-Internet. If that happened today, the world wide web might be choked to death.

How to use less plastic? Is that a fork in your pocket or are you just happy to see me?

Twitter: the number of tweets has tripled in the past year. I bet if I showed up at one of my Twitter followers doorstep, they would call the police.

Debt ceiling unconstitutional? They should make paying for two wars that haven't solved anything unconstitutional, damit! Sorry for the rant.

Can Timberlake bring Myspace back? (he's an investor in News Corp's sale of the company). Hmmmm. Does he have charged paddles?

July 9th, 2011 (the week of) Carmeggedon is set to begin in L.A. with the 405 set to close for work. The Valley girls are really upset about this

This 'no debt ceiling deal' for Obama and Congress is getting old real fast. The 2012 elections are gonna be REAL interesting.

Wife cuts off divorcing husband's penis after drugging him at dinner. Now, honey, that goes way beyond hitting below the belt, if you know what I mean!

The US's GSA is selling lighthouses to raise money. How pathetic is our debt situation right now? <http://news.yahoo.com/gsa-selling-lighthouses-215838326.html>

Fukushima nuclear plant still struggling. It's a real shame that when we are really trying to ween our nation off of foreign oil, the nuclear option is now taboo.

Justin Timberlake accepts an invitation from a female marine to attend the Marine Corps Ball in Washington, DC. I wouldn't get too touchy feely if our were him.

Casey Anthony offered $1 million for her story. I wanna puke right now upon reading that headline. Perfect example of evil in this world getting rewarded. At least in this life....
